It takes tremendous courage to resist the lure of appearances.
The power of being which is manifest in such courage is so great that the gods tremble in fear of it.
Paul Tillich, The Courage to Be

An Opportunity To Read Theologian Paul Tillich's A History Of Christian Thought

. . . with elaboration and discussion facilitated by _____ resident David R. Graham, a 1969 graduate of The Union Theological Seminary, New York City, son of one of Tillich's students there, and life-long Tillich student and enthusiast.

Gratis, free, no cost except you acquire the book on your own and read it.

If interest is keen, age is irrelevant.
