

Theological Geography

Charlotte Square is a city square in Edinburgh, Scotland, part of the New Town, designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Charlotte Square was the last part of the initial phase of the New Town to be completed in 1820. Much of it was the design of Robert Adam, who died in 1792 just as building began.

The Rev. David R. Graham
December 7, 2009

Religion And Science

Science separated from religion is an array of viciously idolatrous cults presided over by The Priests of Baal.

Religion separated from science is an array of grimly tyrannical regimes presided over by The Priests of Moloch.

Science united with religion joined to religion united with science is the royal road of peace, prosperity, justice and love presided over by God.

